side upon a trust company, and remove the technical point now embarrassing us. This is an exceptional and almost meritorious case, and we want to aid the unfortunate in any way possible."

Little Folk Aid Family Of Washington's Leper

"I do not know how I ever should have borne the past week had it not been for the people of Washington," said Mrs. Lottie Early, wife of the leper, this morning. "Those days were the darkest in my life, and as I look back upon them it seems that everything that occurred was clouded and I remember little that happened. One thing, only, stands out vividly, and that is the sympathy of kind friends, and the spirit of the people who came to our aid. What might have happened to us in any other city than this I dare not contemplate."

Just before starting out to the leper camp today, to visit her husband, Mrs. Early, her eleven-month-old baby in her arms, referred to the fund and asked the people of Washington to help. With the prospect of destitution banished, she is almost cheerful, and the mask of sorrow that was set over her features, is giving away to a look of hope.

Gets Notice of Pension.

She received official notice from Pension Commissioner Warner this morning of the decision of the pension board to grant her husband a pension for disability in the service, and that, too, has served to dispel the dismal prospect of a life of want and distress.

This pension money, however, will have to be used to pay Mr. Early's expenses in his isolated abode, the District officials having declared their intention of withdrawing their support, and the money which she will receive from the fund will be needed to establish her in a little home.

The contributions are flowing into the fund faster every day. Every mail brought in scores of letters containing contributions, and all day a stream of people came into The Times office to contribute their mite.

Little Rosetta Elizabeth Burrows, aged two years, the youngest contributor to the fund, was brought into The Times office today by her mother, and saying that she wanted to help the sick man and the poor lady with the baby, passed over a dollar.

Boy Sends Money.

In the big, struggling handwriting of a boy of seven years, little Ralph Conradi, sent in a letter, in which he says: "Dear Washington Times: 'My mother has been telling me about the poor sick man who has to live in a tent all alone by himself, and I'm very sorry for him, and for his little boy, so send you $1.00 out of my bank to help him. God bless him, and make him well.'"

Eight-year-old Rosie Ellis, of 3 Hart place, Conduit road, started out Tuesday to collect money for the fund. She thought she ought to prepare a list, and this is the way she headed it: "Rosie Ellis would like to take up a collection for the leper, and this morning proudly presented her list of contributors and $3.15 at the receiving window of The Times counting room."

Physician's View.

A prominent physician of Washington, with a view to allaying the fears of a more or less excited public regarding the dangers of leprosy infection, called attention today to an article appearing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Discussing it he said: "There is no necessity for the alarm felt in many quarters. That such uneasiness exists I know, from my own personal observation. It is further evidenced by the fact that I have just received letters from relatives in Ohio, who intended visiting my family, but who now advise that 'inasmuch as Washington is leper-ridden we dare not come.'"

"People seem to have a superstitious fear of the ancient disease, a fear handed down through the ages, which all the reassurance of modern scientists cannot quiet. The disease, in reality, is not so contagious as smallpox or diphtheria, and I do not believe has ever been contracted except through prolonged contact."

Fears Groundless.

"I think the people should be impressed with the fact that leprosy is a disease of the blood, and although the loathsomeness of the disease is horrible to contemplate, I do not believe that Early's contact with any Washingtonian before he was isolated was such as to contaminate that person. It would not surprise me if his wife and baby failed to contract the disease, regardless of the fact that they were with the unfortunate man until a few weeks ago."

An extract from the article in the American Medical Association Journal, is as follows: "The ancient history of leprosy should not be the basis of our present-day conduct regarding it. There is now no reason for superstitious dread of the leper, and certainly no occasion for treating him with brutality."

Not Contagious.

"It is apropos that we have at hand some observations of Dr. C. S. Bradock, some time chief medical inspector to the Slamese Government. Dr. Bradock has had abundant opportunity to study leprosy. He was never able to get a single history of any one having acquired leprosy directly from another, he found that many persons were associated with lepers for long periods without contracting the disease. In the Far East there is very little fear of lepers, who are not segregated. The wisest and quite adequate prophylaxis is no doubt, personal cleanliness, as described by Ricketts."

Originally all lepers were confined in institutions; but only indigent ones and those who can not be suitably cared for at home are required to enter an asylum, where they live under the best possible conditions. The others may remain at home, with the understanding that they sleep alone and if possible have separate rooms, that their clothing, linen and eating utensils be used by no one else; that proper precautions be taken in the washing of their clothing; their dressings and bandages are to be burned. Under such regulations the number of lepers in Norway has decreased from 2,570 in 1856 to 271 in 1900."

NEW YORK'S FUNERAL BILL.

New York city pays a large funeral bill. It costs the city $25.00 to bury each of the unclaimed bodies that pass through the morgue, and there are about 5,000 of them in the course of a year.

BOY RESCUES GIRL FROM DROWNING

Justin McCarthy Almost Loses Life in Effort to Save Little Playmate.

Eleven-year-old Justin McCarthy has been the hero of his neighborhood since last Monday, when he plunged into a pool and rescued one of his playmates, Gladys Low, the boy nearly lost his own life, and had it not been for a man who happened to pass just after the boy had gone down for the last time, the brave little fellow would have drowned.

A little group of children, of whom McCarthy and Gladys Low were members, was playing on a raft on a pool just west of the Union Station. Little Gladys, forgetting her danger, suddenly plunged off the raft and disappeared. The children became panic-stricken when Gladys failed to rise to the surface and Justin McCarthy went over the side of the raft and soon rose with Gladys. The little girl was so frightened that she grabbed her rescuer under the neck and both went down again. When they rose to the surface a second boy, George Reardon, a twelve-year-old boy of 11 street northeast, caught Gladys and drew her out of the water.

Little McCarthy was completely exhausted, and again went under. A man passing by heard the children's screams, plunged into the pool and brought the little fellow out.

McCarthy is a manly little fellow whose parents live at 37 K street northeast, and is the idol of every boy and girl in the neighborhood.

SEPTEMBER SALES ARE ON AT MOSES'

Annual Event, Unique in Mercantile Happenings, Now in Full Blast.

The annual September sales, which are said to stand unique among the mercantile events not only of the Capital, but the entire country, are now on at W. B. Moses & Sons, where entire stocks of mills and factories have been assembled for inspection and purchase by a critical public.

The Moses system of going through the wholesale markets and buying discriminatingly of the best, at satisfactory prices, made possible by the immense quantities handled, enables that firm to bring price prominently into play during the annual September sales, which have attained a name peculiarly their own.

In order to affect the needed combination of quality and inducive prices, whole factory stocks of furniture are bought at a clip and entire mill stocks of rugs and carpets, are all taken off. Oftentimes it may be furniture, that the manufacturer has found too expensive for the general market, another may close out a stock of floor coverings, drop carpets, as the discontinued ones are called.

Moses & Sons have just bought what is considered the best in the stock of the Hall, Heddington & Co., of Baltimore, who are said to have made goods too well for the present market demands. The prices paid for these goods, cheap, considering quality. This purchase alone gives the public great opportunity in bedroom furniture.

STRANGER IN TOILS SCORES THE CITY

Declares Half the People Are Crazy—Police Judge Fines Him $10.

"Judge, I came here a stranger in a strange land. I was looking for a place to sleep. I had money to pay for it and was minding my own business when a big fat policeman hit me on the back with his club, knocked me down, and used me for a football."

"He left me on the sidewalk and then the people on the street bumped into me and played ping-pong with me. I don't like this town, your honor. Half the people here are crazy," said Charles Prince, arrested last night for disorderly conduct and arraigned in the Police Court this morning.

"I don't know what brand of whiskey you drink, my friend, but I'd advise you to change it," was Judge Mulowny's advice. The judge followed this up with "Let him pay a fine of $10."

GEORGETOWN TO SUIT HEARST MILLIONAIRE'S DAUGHTER WILL ENTER CONVENT AND BECOME A NUN, IT IS SAID.

Millionaire's Daughter Will Enter Convent and Become a Nun, It Is Said.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 2.—Helen Maloney, whose marital escapades for months have been before the public and the courts, is here today at the home of her father, preparing, it is said, to enter a convent.

Following the death of Martin Maloney, the girl's father, to have her marriage to Arthur Osborne, of New York, finally annulled, the Rev. Gerald P. Coghlan, rector of Our Lady of Mercy Church of Philadelphia, is said to have been called here to instruct Miss Maloney preparatory to her entering a convent at Georgetown. No confirmation is given to this story by the family, but Father Coghlan is here.

It is not believed that Pascal Marquis Maloney desires to have his daughter become a nun, the impression being that he desires to have her go into seclusion to prevent another escapade with Samuel Clarkson, the fascinating young Englishman with whom she fled before.

It was to prevent her union with Clarkson that Mr. Maloney is said to have refused to have the interdictory decree divorcing his daughter from Osborne made permanent without a few days ago in the New York courts.

MRS. MARSHALL FIELD MARRIES IN LONDON

ous relative, Mrs. Field's rich dowry, was playing on a raft on a pool just west of the Union Station. Little Gladys, forgetting her danger, suddenly plunged off the raft and disappeared. ## MAJOR CHANGES TO SUIT HEARST Independence Leader Tells Why He Left Democratic Ranks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Asserting that he had left the Democratic party because he had become disgusted in trying to keep up with the lightning changes of its leaders and policies, William R. Hearst left here today for Indianapolis to open the Independence League party campaign in the middle West.

A Mania With Bryan. He said in part: "I see that Mr. Bryan is criticised for laying claim to the inheritance or bequest of Mr. Roosevelt. It seems to be somewhat of a mania with Mr. Bryan to lay claim to legacies that do not belong to him."

"Bryan at one moment declares that the Republicans have stolen his ideas and in another moment that the Republican Administration has been ungrateful and brought on a panic. If the indicators of Mr. Bryan have been able to accomplish this much with the use of his ideas, I leave the public to imagine what the original could do with the full powers of the Administration."

Sapping Old Parties. Declaring that he believes that the Independence party will gain strength as the campaign progresses, Mr. Hearst said further:

"I believe that the Independence party draws almost equally from the Democrats and Republicans. In some States it runs 60 per cent Democrats and 40 per cent Republicans, while in others, the proportions are about equal. In Indiana, I am informed that we will draw 60 per cent from the Republicans, and in the Vermont primaries, I believe we drew nearly 80 per cent from their vote."

NEW YORK'S CLOCKS.

Time is apparently of more importance to New York than in any other city, for the city displays more public clocks than London and Paris combined.
